

TURUNESH

MUSIC

Turunesh is an Experimental Neo Afro Soul Singer-Songwriter of Tanzanian & Ethiopian origin. Having grown up in Tanzania, her East African roots dictated the creation and development of her alternative style of music. She has 2 self-titled EP's (2016 & 2018), 4 singles (2018 - 2019), and a debut album 'Coastal Cider' (2019) that merge sounds and languages from Eastern & Western Africa as well as Neo Soul & RnB influences. The 22-year-old's freestyle approach to her songmaking stems from growing up listening to old school Afro Jazz and Blues.

Turunesh is currently based in Vancouver, CA, where she has been making great strides in the live music scene and become one of the city's renowned international-local performers.

When she sings she showcases monumental control and intuition. Her main intention when performing is to maintain a strong connection with the audience. Her blending of languages such as Kiswahili and English as well as her fusion of world genres makes it easy to lose oneself and urges you to feel the music in a way that is transportive, taking her listeners to a coastal paradise of her own imagination.

"Ethereal and so beautiful, Coastal Vibes reminds me so much of the sweet air in Dar, and makes me feel so good about being African..."

-Nala Ayieta,
The Ubunifu Works Forum

"'Arewa', the first of two recent releases, was my introduction to Turunesh. I was transfixed by her hypnotic voice floating through the ambient, minimalistic track which features lo-fi synth sounds, humming bass pads and afro-percussive influences."

-Monica, Tangaza Magazine.

"I don't need to put words to this, I can just put down sounds, not every song has to be a story. A song can be a sound...The way the sound is put together, it does something to your heart."

- Turunesh, Tangaza Magazine
